

Senior Interior Designer

Harding and Read is looking for a talented and ambitious Senior Interior Designer to join its growing west London design studio.

Your background

You will need to be highly creative, have a strategic mind and be excellent at problem-solving. You will have an interest in the history of styles, period detailing and antiques, as well as understanding current trends. You will be a keen researcher and have an appetite for colour, texture and the blending of personal and cultural histories.

Key responsibilities:

- developing the creative vision in collaboration with the creative director
- resourcing and costing potential jobs for fee proposals
- managing and delivering projects on time, on budget and to the highest standard
- leading and mentoring other team members, developing their abilities as designers
- designing joinery, bespoke furniture, lighting and fixed finishes
- selecting, sourcing and coordinating detailed design packages, FF&E and specifications for tender
- attending and/or leading site meetings as representative of the client
- taking responsibility for all financial information concerning each project

Experience and qualifications:

- four plus years' post-qualification experience of high-end residential and commercial projects
- proven track record of leading projects from concept to delivery
- demonstrable project management and budgeting skills
- good grasp of interior architecture
- experienced producer of detailed drawings, schedules and specifications
- excellent leadership, time management and organisational skills
- exceptional attention to detail and extensive knowledge of materials, finishes, detailing and scheduling
- free-hand sketching skills and experience of modelling programs
- ability to present design concepts and ideas with confidence and passion
- experience of liaising with architects, consultants, specialists and suppliers

Skills:

- proficient in Vectorworks and Estimac (or similar procurement software)
- Illustrator and Indesign (or similar)
- excellent communication skills in English (verbal, written and visual)

Salary: competitive salary, dependent on experience

Location: west London

Closing date for applications: September 2019

To apply, please submit your application to hello@hardingandread.com and include:

- CV with a covering letter explaining your current role and responsibilities and your aspirations for a new job
- portfolio including examples of your own technical drawings
- three images of interiors that you love

This is a full-time position. All candidates should be eligible to work in the UK.
